Camille will be honored with the A.P. Tureaud Award by the Greater New Orleans Louis A. Martinet Society, given to a member who has been very active in local/state bar associations, at the Society's 2019 Annual Scholarship and Jazz Brunch Gala on September 14. She is McGlinchey Stafford's first attorney to receive this distinction.

According to the Martinet Society's website, "Camille Bryant embodies the A.P. Tureaud Award by actively participating in several local bar associations. In addition to serving as treasurer for the Martinet Society and Martinet Foundation, Ms. Bryant has chaired New Orleans Bar Association - Young Lawyers Committee's Public Service Committee and serves as the current President of the New Orleans Association of Women Attorneys."

"We are so proud of Camille and congratulate her on these well-deserved achievements," says Rudy Aguilar, Jr., Managing Member of McGlinchey Stafford. "Camille exemplifies McGlinchey Stafford's values of excellence in the field of law and perseverance towards community improvement, and we're grateful for her tireless efforts to those ends."

The National Bar Association was founded in 1925 and is the nation's oldest and largest national network of predominantly African-American attorneys and judges. It represents the interests of approximately 65,000 lawyers, judges, law professors and law students. The Women Lawyers Division (WLD) of the National Bar Association was established in 1972 as a vehicle for women in the practice of law to address the issues and problems that particularly affect, interest, and concern African American women.

The Martinet Society was established in 1957 to encourage interchange the of ideas, promote legal scholarship, advance the science of jurisprudence, promote the administration of justice, uphold the order and ethics of the courts and the profession of law and promote the welfare of the legal profession in Louisiana.

In 2019, Camille was also McGlinchey Stafford's first attorney to be selected for the Pathfinder program (which provides diverse, high-potential, early-career attorneys with leadership and career development skills as well as professional networking) by the Leadership Council on Legal Diversity. Her other honors include being named a "Rising Star" in Louisiana Super Lawyers for 2018-2019, and being listed in New Orleans CityBusiness "Ones to Watch" in 2016.
