

Paul Kellogg

OF COUNSEL

Paul Kellogg serves as Of Counsel in McGlinchey Stafford's Houston office and focuses his practice on consumer financial services compliance and regulation in the areas of lending, retail, and motor vehicle sales. His clients include non-bank lenders, state and national banks and credit unions, technology services companies, equipment and manufacturing concerns, entrepreneurs, established businesses, and individuals. With nearly two decades of experience in consumer financial services practice, Paul strives for excellent service by offering his clients tactical, logical solutions to help their businesses thrive and prosper.

A former business owner himself, Paul also advises small businesses on the issues they face. He has a wealth of experience assisting clients with issues related to forming business entities and non-profits, with specific knowledge of partnerships and LLC's. He frequently advises clients on contracts, financing, private offerings and investments, noncompetes and nondisclosure agreements, protection of intellectual property, employment and contractor agreements, and the purchase and disposition of assets and stock.

Before earning his law degree, Paul worked as a community liaison and issue analyst for former Houston Mayors Kathy Whitmire and Bob Lanier. Before that he operated a small business in the Rice Village area.
